

Ms. Swan,

I'm not sure exactly what today's date is because you tend to lose track when you're in the hole. However, I have received the envelopes and note pads you sent! You are an amazing person Peggy. I would love to interact with you on another level? I can be here for moral support. I was taught to never ask a woman her age so that doesn't matter at all. What matters is your heart honestly, and acts of kindness are contagious. When a person like me, who's been needing people like you in their life, for as long as they could remember, finally finds them, should never let go. I'd be an idiot, don't you think? Tell me about yourself. I'm interested. Please understand that I say this with respect. Everyone needs friends at times. I'm a young, handsome, African American guy. As you know already, I'm in a bad situation but I choose not to let it define me. I will remain kind, respectful, responsible, and assertive. I will prosper! What's life like for you? You married? You have kids? You have pets? Allow me to be the one you vent to when things are tough at times. Anything you <sup>need</sup> Peggy, I'll do whatever I could to help. Obviously within the provisions I'm allowed to help. However, you have a life long friend now and you can't take it back haha. Please respond ASAP.

(P.S. sorry for my penmanship.)
